

Justin Chesbrough Video Bio

[Music]

My clients like to work with me because of my communication. We're dealing with very complex tax, financial, consulting issues and I try to break that down and explain that to my clients in a very understandable language and I think they really appreciate that.

I like being a CPA because each day is a new challenge. We're constantly dealing with different tax and financial reporting issues, but we're also helping our clients solve their problems. So, each day we're identifying new issues, new problems, and helping our clients solve them.

My clients appreciate my knowledge of the healthcare industry. We do a lot of work with revenue cycles, compliance issues, shareholder buy-ins and buyouts, compensation formulas. For example, I want to help my clients understand their compensation formula as opposed to simply having it and being an exercise that's done on a routine basis. I want them to understand what it means.