

Lynn Heslinga Video Bio

What I love about my job is the interaction we have with our clients and being able to build a rapport with them over the years, and having them feel comfortable with us, to come to us with any questions they may have. Another favorite part about my job is just being challenged on a daily basis and being able to expand my knowledge on specific audit and tax topics.

I have to thank my sister for getting me interested in accounting in the first place. She's an accountant, she worked at a public accounting firm for 10-plus years. Hearing about the work she did really got me interested and involved in accounting classes. Early on in those classes, I realized that I really thought this was the right career for me and the right fit for me. I really enjoyed the numbers part, of course, but I also love the problem-solving aspect of accounting.

What I'm most proud of is becoming a manager in our nonprofit and real estate services group here. Just being able to manage multiple projects and also being able to have the client interaction and the face-to-face with our clients.