

Mary Hoover Video Bio

I decided to become an accountant during my first bookkeeping course in high school. I love taking a bunch of information, putting it into a format that would show individuals and businesses where they are at financially at that point, but that also would guide them in their future decisions.

What I enjoy about my job is taking information from clients, putting it into the software and either producing reports or writing reports that they need to help them make better business decisions.

My clients tell me they appreciate my responsiveness to their needs and that I have a positive attitude and am respectful to all members of their organization.

One of the things I enjoy about my job is helping clients choose a financial reporting software and then assisting them through the implementation.
