

Bonnie Lilley Video Bio

I bring both of experience in the manufacturing industry as well as the assurance side of our profession. I worked in a manufacturer and different clients throughout the years. I focused on manufacturing, distribution, technology clients as well as not-for-profits. When I go to a client, I really try to understand their business from a strategic point of view. Giving them value-added services aside from the assurance work that they have hired me to do.

The favorite part of the work that I do is I really like working with our clients and learning about their business, understanding the holistic part of their business aside just from giving them recommendations on the regulatory issues that are facing our business. So if we come in just to do the financial statements, I will also keep the strategic direction of the company in mind as well as, you know, where they're headed in the future because I feel my success comes from the success of our clients.

I get excited about working with our clients and their team members. I like to educate them on complicated issues that might be facing their business as well as providing them the assurance service. In addition, I also like working with our internal staff members. I really like developing the young team members, providing leadership and training to them. I like to challenge them to step outside of their comfort zones so that they meet or exceed their goals and expectations.
