

Rachel McAlexander Video Bio

I like working at SVA because of their commitment to the community. They support a lot of the local nonprofits, as well as employees who serve on the boards and committees of those nonprofits. As a female leader, I appreciate SVA's support for women in leadership, both internally and externally through the Women in Business initiative.

SVA also has a sustainability initiative and I serve on that committee. We strive to reduce our environmental impact through reducing waste, energy and water consumption.

I really get excited when a client brings to me a complex problem that I can really dive into. Whether that is through tax research, contacting the IRS or bringing in all of the pieces of the puzzle to come up with the best tax strategy.

I believe honesty is the foundation of any trusting relationship whether that's between myself and the client or between the people I work for or with. With the base of honesty and open communication, I believe any goal is achievable.
