In regards to work with my clients, the thing that I enjoy the most is actually being there with them in the field. I enjoy working with them to solve their problems, meet their regulatory or investor requirements. Just being there one-on-one with the clients. I really enjoy working with people.

I think I have a unique perspective in that, before I came to SVA, I actually worked in the private industry. I actually worked for a property management company and so I've been able to see it on both sides. I've worked in the organizations that we audit, so I bring a unique perspective that I understand some of the things that companies go through in order to be ready, get ready for us to do our audit work. I can give some unique consulting perspective to management companies and owners to help them better facilitate the management of their properties.

What I enjoy about working at SVA is keeping on top of the ever-evolving changes in our industry. The challenges that we face and helping our clients overcome those challenges.
