My favorite part of what I do is just the variety, no two days are the same. Even though I work in a focused industry, I work with a variety of clients and I learn something new from them every day.

I like to work with my clients in any way that makes them most comfortable. I really am flexible. I think that it is beneficial for both parties maybe to meet face to face, so that we can really develop a rapport. It also gives the client and myself, I think, an opportunity to ask questions or bring up issues that may not normally come about during a telephone conversation or an email contact.

I decided to become a CPA early on in my life because I have a passion for numbers, as well as problem solving. And my career as a CPA was really solidified during my internship in college, when I can combine my passion with numbers and work with clients on a daily basis.

I get excited about the work that I do because daily I get to work with numbers and I think that's a given in my profession. But also, I get the opportunity to work with clients and help them with their business problems and help develop solutions for their problems.
